PRACTICE EXPERIENCE

J.W. Taylor is a business law and commercial litigation attorney specializing in the transportation and logistics industry. He founded Taylor Nelson, f/k/a Taylor & Associates, a national full-service transportation law firm, in 2011. Since the firm's inception, J.W. and his highly talented team have opened a second office in Tampa Bay as well as a satellite office in Miami. Under J.W.'s leadership, Taylor Nelson is devoted to meeting a wide array of client needs within the transportation and logistics industry. He represents clients in matters of claims litigation including personal injury litigation and ADR, cargo claims, and contract disputes. In addition to litigation, J.W. is skilled in corporate restructuring and regulatory compliance matters such as insurance design, equipment financing, and risk management.

He is keyed into the reality that insurance drives much of the transportation industry, both in business practices, and in liability assignment based on regulatory requirements. As such, over decades, J.W. has built up a strong host of relationships with the insurance industry and is a consistent speaker and contributor at MCIEF. He has developed a winning strategy in assisting insurance agents in communicating risk management for specific clients to potential underwriters. In the business side of transportation industry, leaders turn to J.W. to provide insurance insights and shed light on coverage developments. On the insurance side, insurers turn to J.W. to assist them with writing policies and contracts that align with industry realities and to help interpret regulatory language in a way that it makes underwriting brokers and motor carriers both solid and profitable. J.W.'s strong background in transportation insurance issues have afforded him the ability to be a voice of influence in the emerging industry of autonomous vehicles.

J.W. Taylor served a full term on the Board of Directors of the Florida Trucking Association from 2019-2022. While serving as a Board member, he zealously represented the interests of the trucking industry in Florida to both state and federal regulatory bodies. He assisted in lobbying for tort reform and for the ongoing efforts for inclusion of protectionary language regarding independent contractor classification for truckers. Additionally, he serves as advisor to the FTA regarding the current volatile legal landscape. JW remains very active with the FTA serving on the industry critical Public Policy Committee, as well as the Membership Recruitment Committee.

J.W. Taylor has earned himself a place of respect, both in winning difficult mediation and court battles concerning catastrophic claims, but—maybe more importantly—structuring companies in such a way as to keep them out of the courtroom in the first place. When people in the transportation industry reference the most distributed and referenced “sample” contracts, they can often be traced back to J.W. Taylor originals. This specifically includes the most widely referenced and replicated Independent Contractor diver agreement used in Motor Carrier operations. J.W.'s reputation for structuring companies in such a way and supplying contracts that minimize exposure as much as possible, given industry business realities, has earned him the respect in the insurance industry that results in a large amount of his new clients being insurance agent referrals. They trust J.W. to set their clients up in a way that protects them from as much liability as possible, and also sets them up for financial success.
